IMAPS-UK Honorary Student Committee Member Role Description:

This is a volunteer role fulfilled by a student member of IMAPS-UK, serving as an “Honorary Student Committee Member” onto the Societies organising Committee, for a period of one year. The elected person must commit to the following responsibilities and report their activities to their fellow officers at the Societies Committee Meetings, which are held 3-4 times per year; travel and subsistence costs of attending the meetings can be re-charged to the Society at the individuals’ discretion.

Overview:

IMAPS-UK plays a leading role in the UK electronics industry, working closely with other governing bodies, societies, industrial and academic institutions, to ensure that our members are kept up to date with the latest developments & innovations in microelectronics & related fields and to provide a forum for the industry to meet and shape its future.

The Society's objectives are achieved through developing its membership, hosting regional seminars, workshops, major international conferences and exhibitions, the publication of newsletters, & technical papers and other activities relevant to promoting knowledge within the industry.

All committee members are expected to freely volunteer their time in support the above activities.

Responsibilities:

The following list, whilst not exhaustive, provides an overview of the responsibilities of the Honorary Student Committee Member, which will focus on supporting & developing the activities of the Society with a perspective of representing the views of students (post-graduate and undergraduate) to the Committee, including:

- Attending the Societies Committee Meetings whenever possible
- Providing input on the modus operandi of the Society and how it can be improved for the benefit of its student members
- Providing support to fellow committee members in the pursuit of their duties to the Society
- Acting as an ambassador for the society
- Encouraging involvement and membership in the society
- Supporting the organisation and running of the Societies Conferences, Workshops and Other Activities as required
